The UCLA breast center multidisciplinary program has been around for over 17 years. This program was one of the original tumor boards to include the patients in the process of decision making. It has been a cutting edge program and continues to remain one of the foremost in the country."

— Sherry

The Multidisciplinary Program is designed for individuals who are newly diagnosed with breast cancer, who have a recurrence or disease progression, or want a second opinion regarding treatment options.

The Multidisciplinary Program — a key component of the comprehensive Revlon/UCLA Breast Center — enables breast cancer patients to consult a variety of specialists in one day and emerge with a carefully considered treatment recommendation.
The UCLA breast center multidisciplinary program has been around for over 17 years. This program was one of the original tumor boards to include the patients in the process of decision making. It has been a cutting edge program and continues to remain one of the foremost in the country. — Sherry

The Revlon/UCLA Breast Center

Multidisciplinary Program

Appointments
To make an appointment at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center, please call (310) 825-2144.

Location
The Revlon/UCLA Breast Center is located at 200 UCLA Medical Plaza, a facility specially designed to provide in one convenient, accessible and comfortable location all the outpatient services a patient may need. UCLA Medical Plaza is located adjacent to Ronald Reagan UCLA Medical Center.

Revlon/UCLA Breast Center
200 UCLA Medical Plaza
Suite B265 (B2 Level)
Los Angeles, California 90095
(310) 825-2144

The Multidisciplinary Program is designed for individuals who are newly diagnosed with breast cancer, who have a recurrence or disease progression, or want a second opinion regarding treatment options.

The Multidisciplinary Program — a key component of the comprehensive Revlon/UCLA Breast Center — enables breast cancer patients to consult a variety of specialists in one day and emerge with a carefully considered treatment recommendation.
"The UCLA breast center multidisciplinary program has been around for over 17 years. This program was one of the original tumor boards to include the patients in the process of decision making. It has been a cutting edge program and continues to remain one of the foremost in the country."

– Sherry

The Multidisciplinary Program is designed for individuals who are newly diagnosed with breast cancer, who have a recurrence or disease progression, or want a second opinion regarding treatment options.

The Multidisciplinary Program — a key component of the comprehensive Revlon/UCLA Breast Center — enables breast cancer patients to consult a variety of specialists in one day and emerge with a carefully considered treatment recommendation.

Appointments
To make an appointment at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center, please call (310) 825-2144.

Location
The Revlon/UCLA Breast Center is located at 200 UCLA Medical Plaza, a facility specially designed to provide in one convenient, accessible and comfortable location all the outpatient services a patient may need. UCLA Medical Plaza is located adjacent to Ronald Reagan UCLA Medical Center.

Revlon/UCLA Breast Center
200 UCLA Medical Plaza
Suite B265 (B2 Level)
Los Angeles, California 90095
(310) 825-2144
The Multidisciplinary Program

commences every Wednesday afternoon, beginning at 12:00 p.m. Patients should plan to spend the afternoon in consultation and may not receive their finalized treatment recommendation until late in the afternoon.

During the afternoon, the patient is seen individually, by a team of medical experts who rotates through their exam room. Depending on each patient’s history, this may include UCLA surgeons, medical oncologists, radiation oncologists, psychologists, pathologists, radiologists, plastic surgeons, and nurse practitioners, who carefully consider the most up-to-date treatments for each patient. The specialists evaluate each patient, taking a clinical history, performing an examination, and reviewing relevant records and past medical reports.

How to Begin

• Determine Eligibility:
  Patients should contact their insurance company directly to determine coverage of a second opinion at UCLA. Contact the Multidisciplinary Program at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center at (310) 825-2144 as soon as possible to schedule an appointment. The cost of the program varies depending on the complexity of each case.

• Obtain a UCLA Identification Number:
  Patients must obtain a UCLA identification number to schedule an appointment. If this is a first visit to UCLA, call (310) 301-8899 to pre-register.

• Send Medical Records:
  All relevant medical records must be received at least 5-7 days prior to the appointment date. We suggest mailing or delivering records directly, and not relying on a referring physician to do so. Use a company with a tracking system to ensure reliable delivery. If a patient ultimately decides to seek treatment from a non-UCLA physician, all medical records that were sent or brought to the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center will be returned at the end of the appointment.

  The Multidisciplinary Program — a key component of the comprehensive Revlon/UCLA Breast Center — enables breast cancer patients either newly diagnosed or recurrent, to consult a variety of specialists in one day and emerge with a carefully considered treatment recommendation.

  Participants in the Multidisciplinary Program at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center consult one-on-one with a variety of medical specialists from UCLA, all in one afternoon. By the end of the day, the team presents each patient with a customized treatment recommendation.

  “If not for the multi-disciplinary program, I would have made a mistake with the direction of my care. I am so grateful.”

  – Marci

Caring Guidance

After the succession of visits, the patient takes a one-hour break. During this time, the medical experts meet together to discuss each individual patient’s presentation, review clinical tests and reports, and decide on treatment recommendations. The participant returns to the exam room after the break and receives the treatment recommendations from one of the specialists assigned directly to the patient.

A day of discussions, examinations, and treatment recommendations may be overwhelming. It is recommended to bring a family member or friend to the visit. Additionally, a written summary of the team’s recommendation will be mailed to the patient.

Appointment Preparation

All relevant medical records must be received at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center at least five days before the appointment. Records should include:

• Pathology slides and reports — a complete set of the actual glass slides from any surgeries or biopsies of the breast.

• Radiographic images and coinciding reports — including mammograms, breast ultrasounds, MRI, CT or bone scans, when appropriate.

• Blood work results within the last month.

• Records from any treatments since diagnosis — including surgery, radiation treatment or chemotherapy.
How to Begin

• Determine Eligibility:
  Patients should contact their insurance company directly to determine coverage of a second opinion at UCLA. Contact the Multidisciplinary Program at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center at (310) 825-2144 as soon as possible to schedule an appointment. The cost of the program varies depending on the complexity of each case.

• Obtain a UCLA Identification Number:
  Patients must obtain a UCLA identification number to schedule an appointment. If this is a first visit to UCLA, call (310) 301-8899 to pre-register.

• Send Medical Records:
  All relevant medical records must be received at least 5-7 days prior to the appointment date. We suggest mailing or delivering records directly, and not relying on a referring physician to do so. Use a company with a tracking system to ensure reliable delivery. If a patient ultimately decides to seek treatment from a non-UCLA physician, all medical records that were sent or brought to the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center will be returned at the end of the appointment.

The Multidisciplinary Program — a key component of the comprehensive Revlon/UCLA Breast Center — enables breast cancer patients either newly diagnosed or recurrent, to consult a variety of specialists in one day and emerge with a carefully considered treatment recommendation. Participants in the Multidisciplinary Program at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center consult one-on-one with a variety of medical specialists from UCLA, all in one afternoon. By the end of the day, the team presents each patient with a customized treatment recommendation.

Caring Guidance

After the succession of visits, the patient takes a one-hour break. During this time, the medical experts meet together to discuss each individual patient’s presentation, review clinical tests and reports, and decide on treatment recommendations. The participant returns to the exam room after the break and receives the treatment recommendations from one of the specialists assigned directly to the patient.

A day of discussions, examinations, and treatment recommendations may be overwhelming. It is recommended to bring a family member or friend to the visit. Additionally, a written summary of the team’s recommendation will be mailed to the patient.

Appointment Preparation

All relevant medical records must be received at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center at least five days before the appointment. Records should include:

• Pathology slides and reports — a complete set of the actual glass slides from any surgeries or biopsies of the breast.

• Radiographic images and coinciding reports — including mammograms, breast ultrasounds, MRI, CT or bone scans, when appropriate.

• Blood work results within the last month.

• Records from any treatments since diagnosis — including surgery, radiation treatment or chemotherapy.

If not for the multi-disciplinary program, I would have made a mistake with the direction of my care. I am so grateful.

– Marci
The Multidisciplinary Program commences every Wednesday afternoon, beginning at 12:00 p.m. Patients should plan to spend the afternoon in consultation and may not receive their finalized treatment recommendation until late in the afternoon.

During the afternoon, the patient is seen individually, by a team of medical experts who rotates through their exam room. Depending on each patient’s history, this may include UCLA surgeons, medical oncologists, radiation oncologists, psychologists, pathologists, radiologists, plastic surgeons, and nurse practitioners, who carefully consider the most up-to-date treatments for each patient. The specialists evaluate each patient, taking a clinical history, performing an examination, and reviewing relevant records and past medical reports.

How to Begin

• Determine Eligibility:
  Patients should contact their insurance company directly to determine coverage of a second opinion at UCLA. Contact the Multidisciplinary Program at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center at (310) 825-2144 as soon as possible to schedule an appointment. The cost of the program varies depending on the complexity of each case.

• Obtain a UCLA Identification Number:
  Patients must obtain a UCLA identification number to schedule an appointment. If this is a first visit to UCLA, call (310) 301-8899 to pre-register.

• Send Medical Records:
  All relevant medical records must be received at least 5-7 days prior to the appointment date. We suggest mailing or delivering records directly, and not relying on a referring physician to do so. Use a company with a tracking system to ensure reliable delivery. If a patient ultimately decides to seek treatment from a non-UCLA physician, all medical records that were sent or brought to the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center will be returned at the end of the appointment.

The Multidisciplinary Program — a key component of the comprehensive Revlon/UCLA Breast Center — enables breast cancer patients either newly diagnosed or recurrent, to consult a variety of specialists in one day and emerge with a carefully considered treatment recommendation.

Participants in the Multidisciplinary Program at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center consult one-on-one with a variety of medical specialists from UCLA, all in one afternoon. By the end of the day, the team presents each patient with a customized treatment recommendation.

Caring Guidance

After the succession of visits, the patient takes a one-hour break. During this time, the medical experts meet together to discuss each individual patient’s presentation, review clinical tests and reports, and decide on treatment recommendations. The participant returns to the exam room after the break and receives the treatment recommendations from one of the specialists assigned directly to the patient.

A day of discussions, examinations, and treatment recommendations may be overwhelming. It is recommended to bring a family member or friend to the visit. Additionally, a written summary of the team’s recommendation will be mailed to the patient.

Appointment Preparation

All relevant medical records must be received at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center at least five days before the appointment. Records should include:

• Pathology slides and reports — a complete set of the actual glass slides from any surgeries or biopsies of the breast.

• Radiographic images and coinciding reports — including mammograms, breast ultrasounds, MRI, CT or bone scans, when appropriate.

• Blood work results within the last month.

• Records from any treatments since diagnosis — including surgery, radiation treatment or chemotherapy.

---

“If not for the multi-disciplinary program, I would have made a mistake with the direction of my care. I am so grateful.”

— Marci
The Multidisciplinary Program commences every Wednesday afternoon, beginning at 12:00 p.m. Patients should plan to spend the afternoon in consultation and may not receive their finalized treatment recommendation until late in the afternoon.

During the afternoon, the patient is seen individually, by a team of medical experts who rotates through their exam room. Depending on each patient’s history, this may include UCLA surgeons, medical oncologists, radiation oncologists, psychologists, pathologists, radiologists, plastic surgeons, and nurse practitioners, who carefully consider the most up-to-date treatments for each patient. The specialists evaluate each patient, taking a clinical history, performing an examination, and reviewing relevant records and past medical reports.

How to Begin

- Determine Eligibility:
  Patients should contact their insurance company directly to determine coverage of a second opinion at UCLA. Contact the Multidisciplinary Program at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center at (310) 825-2144 as soon as possible to schedule an appointment. The cost of the program varies depending on the complexity of each case.

- Obtain a UCLA Identification Number:
  Patients must obtain a UCLA identification number to schedule an appointment. If this is a first visit to UCLA, call (310) 301-8899 to pre-register.

- Send Medical Records:
  All relevant medical records must be received at least 5-7 days prior to the appointment date. We suggest mailing or delivering records directly, and not relying on a referring physician to do so. Use a company with a tracking system to ensure reliable delivery. If a patient ultimately decides to seek treatment from a non-UCLA physician, all medical records that were sent or brought to the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center will be returned at the end of the appointment.

The Multidisciplinary Program — a key component of the comprehensive Revlon/UCLA Breast Center — enables breast cancer patients either newly diagnosed or recurrent, to consult a variety of specialists in one day and emerge with a carefully considered treatment recommendation.

Participants in the Multidisciplinary Program at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center consult one-on-one with a variety of medical specialists from UCLA, all in one afternoon. By the end of the day, the team presents each patient with a customized treatment recommendation.

Caring Guidance

After the succession of visits, the patient takes a one-hour break. During this time, the medical experts meet together to discuss each individual patient’s presentation, review clinical tests and reports, and decide on treatment recommendations. The participant returns to the exam room after the break and receives the treatment recommendations from one of the specialists assigned directly to the patient.

A day of discussions, examinations, and treatment recommendations may be overwhelming. It is recommended to bring a family member or friend to the visit. Additionally, a written summary of the team’s recommendation will be mailed to the patient.

Appointment Preparation

All relevant medical records must be received at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center at least five days before the appointment. Records should include:

- Pathology slides and reports — a complete set of the actual glass slides from any surgeries or biopsies of the breast.
- Radiographic images and coinciding reports — including mammograms, breast ultrasounds, MRI, CT or bone scans, when appropriate.
- Blood work results within the last month.
- Records from any treatments since diagnosis — including surgery, radiation treatment or chemotherapy.

“If not for the multi-disciplinary program, I would have made a mistake with the direction of my care. I am so grateful.”

— Marci
“The UCLA breast center multidisciplinary program has been around for over 17 years. This program was one of the original tumor boards to include the patients in the process of decision making. It has been a cutting edge program and continues to remain one of the foremost in the country.”

— Sherry

Appointments
To make an appointment at the Revlon/UCLA Breast Center, please call (310) 825-2144.

Location
The Revlon/UCLA Breast Center is located at 200 UCLA Medical Plaza, a facility specially designed to provide in one convenient, accessible and comfortable location all the outpatient services a patient may need. UCLA Medical Plaza is located adjacent to Ronald Reagan UCLA Medical Center.

Revlon/UCLA Breast Center
200 UCLA Medical Plaza
Suite B265 (B2 Level)
Los Angeles, California 90095
(310) 825-2144